Russia Files Ultimatum

London—Russia presented ultimatum to Bulgaria with a time limit of 24 hours, which expires early this afternoon.

It is expected that Czar Ferdinand will return a peaceful reply, and a declaration of war from Petrograd will come either today or tomorrow. This will set match to tinder and it is expected that the whole Balkan country will be ablaze with war in the next forty-eight hours.

The Russian ultimatum, which was presented at Sofia by the Russian minister, calls upon Bulgaria to dismiss Austrian and German officers who have recently arrived to direct the operations of the Bulgarian army. If the dismissals be not executed within forty-eight hours, the minister informs the Bulgarian minister of foreign affairs, he has been instructed to leave Sofia, while the Bulgarian minister at Petrograd will be handed his passports.

Greece And Roumania

The attitude of Greece and Bulgaria are now regarded as definitely established, while that of Roumania is uncertain. If Roumania enters the war at all it will be on the side of the Entente, but the possibility is that King Carlos may keep his nation out of the war entirely.
